

BBT Online's Bucket List Thomas Dupont (29) – Director of Sales

Holiday Inn Brussels Airport

As our industry can get overwhelming and hectic, there is nothing more fulfilling than drinking (a perfect) glass of red wine and writing down some points on my personal bucket list. You know what is even better? Looking at previous bucket lists and discover you actually accomplished the things you wanted to do. So my tip of the day, write down your points! You would be amazed of how our brain works and how we, indirectly, will work and take decisions to accomplish our goals.

1. Someday, I would like to drink a cup of coffee with Richard Branson and just talk about life in general. I believe that his 'way of thinking' and 'way of decision making' is truly inspirational.
2. Maybe because 'my generation' is a generation of 'impact', one of my dreams is to develop a highly original and unique festival concept. The concept should be accessible enough for a target group, globally, so it could be duplicated all over the world.
3. Travel, something we all desire and all want. To be honest, I am not attracted to very exotic destinations. I would be very happy to make a road trip in Tuscany, preferably on a Vespa, together with my father and son (when he is older and ready to drink wine off course).
4. Learn the Danish language! Some years ago, on a vacation in Denmark, I discovered that I really like the Danish language. You would be surprised how many similarities there are between Flemish and Danish.
5. My creative brain has some mysterious ways of thinking. Somehow, whenever brainstorming, I always end with an idea of producing a song. I think the complexity of making a song and creating the perfect tune combined with the perfect text is intriguing.
