

BBT Online's Bucket list - Daisy Tucci (35), Commercial Manager, Hilton Brussels Grand Place

It's quite funny that I had to really challenge my brain before I could even start to vision a top 5 bucket list. Me, often busy with ticking off another to-do list, drilling whiteboards on too many walls, flipping the pages of again a 'goal-setting flipchart'... and yet I couldn't think of 5 simple things. But why? Well, maybe it is time to look further than the usual time-line of 6 months and figure out what we really want to do before we knock on heavens' door!

1. Dance on a beach

I love dancing, and since I was a child I tend to be the party-starter during the first sound of the slightest beat on the radio. But just to be a little bit more specific, in this picture I would like to be on a beach in Rio, temperature of 32 degrees, imagine a gorgeous sunset and pineapples on the barbeque, smooth salsa rhythms, and people dancing and laughing, cocktail in my hand, white linen dress, with a group of close friends. And we're very tanned and quite tipsy, obviously...

I hope some of my close-ones are taking notes here?

2. Sing on a stage

Well, this is quite a dare if you consider that I shy away during even family karaoke with grandma (my number one fan). But still, it's a little secret dream of mine to be the leading lady of a jazz band for just one evening, in some cosy bar with my friends and parents in the audience. You might want to calculate earplugs in there, but anyway as I said, it's a courageous dream!

3. Climb the Kilimanjaro

I love hiking, the sense of rough nature around me, I love the thrill of reaching the top and I chose the challenge of the notorious Kilimanjaro because one of my friends (who is not really super fit, an important point here) told me that it is absolutely doable! His story has been printed in my head ever since. And I admit, the IG post would be too cool to not consider!

4. Have my own family

I can't keep my plants alive and most of my pets have strangely 'disappeared'. I cringe when I hear the word 'routine' and I'm addicted to my career but still... I can't deny I'd like to have my own family one day. I don't need to add anything else to this ... For the last 10 years I have lived abroad for my career and I am lucky to have had amazing experiences all over the globe. I have recently chosen to come back home to Brussels and settle down. It's been 3 months now and it must be noted that no plants have died or suffered during the making of this transition (yet).

5. My grandparents' memoires

My grandparents come from a long line of Italian immigrants who have been through the hard struggle of leaving behind their home country so they could find stability for their family-to-come. I admire their highly inspiring story and can listen to it for hours. As I have everything to thank them for, it is my wish to write down their memories so their story will never be forgotten. I'd even add in my Nonna's secret tomato sauce. But that last one I am keeping for myself!
