

BBT Online's Bucket list – November 2016

Michèle Nomes – Manager Cloud 9 Events

I have jumped out of a plane, I have travelled alone through New Zealand & Fiji and I've raced in a Lamborghini... But of course there are many points left on my bucket list that I wish to tick off one day. This is my top 5.

1. If there is one thing I must do, it is becoming a blood donor. Many people would not be alive today if donors had not generously given their blood. I have the blood type O negative; it is the universal donor and can be transfused to patients with any blood type. I really could save a lot of lives with my blood. Definitely number one on my bucket list!
2. Lisbon is a wonderful city that has stolen my heart ten years ago. I love the diversity and youthfulness of it. It has great potential. I often go there by myself or with my friend and we never leave without a couple of telephone number in our pockets. Super friendly and helpful citizens, who also speak the most beautiful language in the world. One day I would like to move there.
3. I would love to get a tattoo one day. In most things I can decide rather quickly and easily. When it comes to tattoos, I can't. Two of my favorite expressions are "go big or go home" and "all or nothing". If I apply this to the size of my tattoo, I think it's better to wait some more years and really think about what I want. There are some great artists in the tattoo world who create amazing art on living canvases.
4. I love to write. That's why I studied journalism. It is my dream to have a book with my story published one day. I have a lot of diaries from when I was younger. Maybe they can be the source for my book. Or maybe a biography isn't such a good idea. We've all got our secrets... 😊
5. I've practically had the same look since I was 15 years old. Same hair, same style of clothing. It is time for something new and different. I believe that physical appearance is a major factor in the development of your personality. To change your look once in a while is good for your self-esteem and self-image. And if I don't like it, I can always remind myself of the fact that hair grows back (and the world keeps on turning).
